INFRARED CABINS

If you prefer a lighter temperature either for your sauna or practise sports, the infrared cabin is an ideal sauna, as thanks to the pleasant heat featured, its particular feature, offers various benefits for health. Among others, it reinforces the immunological and cardiovascular systems, improves the blood circulation, relaxes the muscular tension, and reduces the stress and fatigue. At the time, it is so appropriate for therapeutic treatments.

The superficial heating system of our infrared cabins is correctly installed in the interior of the walls. This provides an ideal distribution of the heat, evenly among the users by means of the wood. The source of radiation is hidden behind the inside wooden cladding, remaining perfectly integrated in the very structure of the cabin.

This range of saunas is especially aimed for professional installations, as they are thought to be used intensively, such as any installation with a continuous attendance of visitors requires. The adaptability, durability, quality and maintenance of these mean key factors by the time of choosing a sauna.

Not only the shape and external dimensions can be customized, but also the internal design of the cabin, in order to make up a suitable sauna space for the type of installation in which it has to be integrated: thermal centre, hotel, cellar, resort, sports centre... We create the professional sauna that better matches your business.

WOOD & COATINGS

It is obvious that wood determines the quality of sauna. However, the choice of the material requires some experience. The Canadian hemlock, strong wood without any knots, is ideal for saunas, as it perfectly bears extreme weather conditions, and distributes heat so evenly. The poplar wood, tough without any knots, is ideal for the infrared cabins, provided that it is extremely resistant.

Abachi is used for benches. It is a type of softer wood that does not harden or splinter, and transmits less heat.

We have selected for you the best coatings, in order for you to be able to choose several styles and colours for your sauna. And all of it under an unquestionable premise: maximum respect for the natural environment.

CROMOTERAPY

Green colour means hope; red colour means love; yellow colour means intelligence; and blue colour means quietness. Colours have a special kind of magic. Each colour arouses different states of mind. Energy is fed by red light; smile comes to us surrounded by yellow background; relax comes over us by green colour; and dreams invade us by blue colour. The sauna is a unique space to capture each of these effects fully. And, by means of chromotherapy, the bathers dive in their favourite tonalities at the time they enjoy an intensive sauna bath. Colours take turns, creating whole new tonalities. Furthermore, in an optional way, you can fulfill our chromotherapy by using the CROMHA mechanism, especially developed for saunas and producing a tensor effect on your skin.

Another option to highlight the charm of your sauna is BONALUMIA. An innovating accessory which function is to project a set of continuous colour changes on the sauna wall. Its effects are immediate; you will feel a quick and deep relax even more outstanding if it is mixed with those types of music recalling open and quiet spaces in the middle of nature.

LOCKERS & CHANGING ROOMS

The changing-rooms are a vital space in any type of installation, and the users grant them a lot of importance. For this reason it is so primary to transmit an excellent look; because your centre will never have a second chance to produce a good first impression.

The space, the hygiene, the safety, as well as comfort and colour of dressing-rooms are fundamental requisites to achieve it. To these attributes we should add up the high resistance of the lockers and changing-rooms of Freixanet, ready to perfectly bear a high rotation of users.
